Planning ahead?

It makes sense to plan ahead.

That's true in so many aspects of life - and throughout life people carefully plan and organise many important events so they are free of stress. Planning your funeral and for the payment of your funeral is just as important. Therefore, it is no wonder that Funeral Bonds have become increasingly popular. One of the major reasons that Funeral Bonds have become so popular is that a Funeral Bond can provide peace of mind for you and for those close to you.

What is a Funeral Bond?

A Funeral Bond is a way of putting aside money to pay for your funeral. In a way it is like a savings plan, where you put aside a lump sum or make regular payments until you reach a predetermined amount. Your Funeral Bond will also safeguard your funds, so that they can only be used for paying the cost of a funeral. You know that your Tasmanian Perpetual Trustees Funeral Bond* is safe and secure. It is an investment that provides you with peace of mind, knowing that you have protected your family from future expenses related to your funeral.

How a Funeral Bond works for you

Funeral Bonds are very flexible – you can save for them gradually or pay in a single lump sum.

For professional guidance regarding the expected cost of a funeral it is useful to speak with a funeral director. This will assist you in determining how much money you will need to place in your Funeral Bond to ensure your funeral is as you would want it to be.

The pre-arranged funeral option

Through arrangements with your funeral director, you have the option of linking your funeral bond to a pre-arranged funeral contract. This will help to protect you against the rising costs of funerals. Pre-arranged funerals let you make decisions and arrangements in advance. With your funeral director you arrange the funeral you want at the price you want to pay. Your funeral director will guide you through the planning process and detail the costs involved.
